Prep 25 min Cook 35 min Total 1 hr Serves 4 servings

½ lb. pepper steak
3 Tbsp. oil
1 cup water
1 onion, sliced into rings
1 garlic clove, crushed
¼ tsp. ground ginger
1 tsp. salt
2 green peppers, cut into ¾-inch strips
1 Tbsp. cornstarch
3 Tbsp. sugar
2 Tbsp. soy sauce
2 medium tomatoes, cut into wedges
4 cups hot, cooked rice frozen.) Heat oil in a sauté pan over medium-high heat. Add meat and cook until meat is browned, about 5 minutes per side.

2. Add water, onion, garlic, ginger, and salt. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover, and simmer until beef is tender, about 20 minutes. Add half of the peppers to the pan.

3. In a small bowl, combine cornstarch, sugar, and soy sauce. Stir into beef mixture. Raise heat and stir constantly as mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Lower heat and add tomatoes and remaining peppers. Cover and cook for an additional 3 minutes. Serve over hot rice.

Instructions

1. Cut beef into strips measuring 1/4-inch by 2 inches. (This will be easier to do if meat is partially frozen.) Heat oil in a saute pan over medium-high heat. Add meat and cook until meat is browned, about 5 minutes per side.
2. Add water, onion, garlic, ginger, and salt. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover, and simmer until beef is tender, about 20 minutes. Add half of the peppers to the pan.

Tips

- Health Note: green vs. colored peppers: All peppers are green when they begin to grow. As they ripen, their sugar content increases and they turn colors - that's why brightly colored peppers are sweeter than green ones, which are picked earlier and have a sharp, bitter taste. It's also why green peppers are less expensive than red: they don't take as long to grow.
